 A weekend best forgotten:
0 from 4 Bets

Remind Me Why I Do This Again

Well, in analyst speak, I think we just had a "negatively optimal" weekend during which "market conditions were considerably more unfavourable than anticipated", pushing the shareprices of the Heritage and Beta Funds into "negative territory".

Rough translation: we tanked. Four bets produced four losses as we were successively let down by the Tigers, the Pies and the Demons (again).

Amongst the rabble, only Collingwood showed any realistic promise for a substantive chunk of proceedings, leading by a point at the final change before apparently succumbing to a bout of collective amnesia about the primary purpose of the afternoon's endeavour. The Pies kicked just 2 behinds in the final term, which is, I hope, about 20 fewer than the number of behinds kicked immediately post-game by coach Malthouse in the privacy of the dressing-room.

Richmond, perhaps, could have threatened the Bulldogs a little had they kicked straighter, and the Dees might have discomfitted the Dockers had they too found accuracy in front of goal; but, in truth, neither team deserved to get close.

Here's how the carnage looks numerically:

And here's what that means in terms of the season as a whole:

For any of you contemplating a pre-emptive rescue effort to save your remaining funds, please be reminded that you may cash out at any time between Monday 9am and Wednesday noon.

If you're looking for good news, just be thankful that the Line Fund wasn't trading live this weekend: its notional six bets would have provided just one winner, resulting in a net loss of almost 32% of initial funds. When I say a Fund is speculative, I mean it's spectactularly speculative.

 We're now narrowly behind on the season

Sportsbet 5 – Chi 4

Not a great weekend for the Prophesying Pooches either, with Chi tipping 4 from 8, and Quila just 2. (A quick correction: in Thursday's newsletter I suggested that Chi had tipped 8 favourites, including Collingwood. In fact, Sportsbet were narrowly favouring Port Adelaide over Collingwood.)

As you can see from the table above, it was a poor weekend's tipping for almost all of the strategies. Leading strategy, MM16, managed only 4, as did MM8, MM11 and MM22. The weekend's best results belonged to MM4 and Sportsbet, each of which tipped 5.

The average margin of victory this weekend was just 29 points, the second-lowest round average for the season. This average would have been smaller still but for the thumpings in two of the three Sunday games. Generally small victory margins meant that tipping the wrong teams had a relatively small impact on Chi's and Quila's season Average Prediction Error, as the Cumulative Tipping Performance table below shows:

• MM16 leads outright. Chi continues to trail by 2.

Cumulative Tipping Performance

|      | Cum | Av Pred Err |
|------|-----|-------------|
| MM16 | 20  | -           |
| ВКВ  | 19  | 27.9        |
| СТМ  | 18  | 28.0        |
| MM4  | 18  | -           |
| MM6  | 18  | -           |
| NIT  | 18  | -           |
| MM8  | 17  | -           |
| MM22 | 17  | -           |
| MM2  | 16  | -           |
| MM11 | 16  | -           |
| QTM  | 15  | 29.1        |
| CTL  | 15  | -           |

A particularly striking feature of the weekend's results was the chronic inaccuracy of losing teams. Combined, losers managed only 71.118 (38%) this weekend, with Sydney's 5.14 and Carlton's 4.15 the most egregious transgressors.

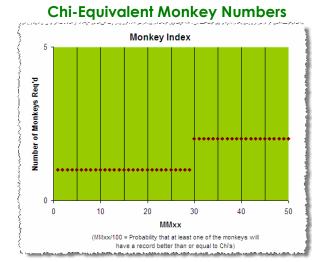

In fact, five of the weekend's eight losers would have been winners had they converted just one-half of their behinds into goals. (Only Richmond, Melbourne and Carlton were beyond help even from such a behinds-into-goals fairy godmother).

Winning teams were not exactly laser-like in their accuracy either, with 4 of them kicking at no better than 50% and their overall performance coming in at 113.98 (54%).

Monkey Update

Chi's four from eight has done little to improve his claims for ascending the evolutionary ladder.

This week, I thought it might be more useful to show how the Chi-Equivalent Monkey Number (CEMN) varies depending on how likely you want it to be that at least one of them equals or beats his tipping performance.

So, if you require the probability of an equal or superior monkey to be only, at most, 30%, the CEMN is 1. If, instead, you require a probability of 30% to 50%, the CEMN rockets to 2.

Here's the equivalent chart based on MM16's performance:

In a similar fashion then, if you require the probability of an equal or superior monkey to be 50%, the MM16EMN is 7.

 Melbourne can't win a game, but they're demons in the 4th quarter

The Alternative Premierships

Six different teams lead the various Alternative Premierships at the end of the weekend.

Geelong remains unbeaten at the head of the End of 1st Quarter Premiership, tipping out the also undefeated Kangaroos on percentages. Port Adelaide and Hawthorn prop up the table and are both yet to record a point in this Premiership.

Essendon sits atop the End of 2nd Quarter Premiership, having led at half-time in all 4 of its games. In contrast, Carlton and Melbourne are yet to lead at the main break.

West Coast leads the End of 3rd Quarter Premiership and the End of 4th Quarter Premiership, with 4 from 4 wins in each. Melbourne is yet to lead at 3QT or at the final siren.

TAB Sportsbet Prices : 18th April 2007

Brisbane has the best  $2^{nd}$  Quarter performance and is the only team to have won 4 from 4. Melbourne is yet to win a  $2^{nd}$  (or a  $3^{rd}$ ) quarter.

Port Adelaide has won all of its 3rd quarters and so leads this premiership by a full game.

Melbourne, despite an 0 from 4 win-loss record, has won 3 and drawn 1 of its fourth quarters, which sees it sitting incongruously atop the During the 4th Quarter Premiership. Richmond - also 0 from 4 in terms of overall win-loss - are 0 from 4 in the fourth quarter.

Appendix Tipping Model Strategies

| Strategy Name                   | Basis for Tips   |
|---------------------------------|--|
| Chi TippingModel (CTM)      | Complex statistical model incorporating a range of factors.  |
| Quila TippingModel (QTM)    | Uses an approach similar to that used for the CTM.   |
| Bookies KnowBest (BKB)      | For each game, tips the TAB Sportsbet favourite. In the case of equal favourites, it tips the true home team or, if there's no true home team, tips the team with the higher ladder position (ties are broken using percentage then for-and-against margin). |
| Consult TheLadder (CTL)     | Tips the team with the higher ladder position (ties are broken using percentage then for-and-against margin). For the first round of the season, use the ladder position at the end of the previous regular season.  |
| MomentumMatters (MMx)       | A series of strategies that involve building competition ladders based onlyon the results of the most recent x rounds of regular season games(drawing on games from the previous season if required).  |
|                                 | The MM2 strategy considers only the last 2 regular season rounds, the MM4 strategy only the last 4 rounds, and so on. Once a ladder has been built for a strategy, the selected team is that with the superior ladder position (as per CTL above).           |
|                                 | This year we'll track the performance of MM2, MM4, MM6, MM8, MM11, MM16 and MM22.  |
| No IndependentThought (NIT) | Tips the team that is most popular amongst all other strategies.   |
